Objective

A Tree Plantation Drive organized by the Rotaract Club of Symbiosis Law School, Nagpur (RAC SLSN) in collaboration with Rotary International (RI) aimed at planting 500 trees in the Wathoda region near our campus.

Key Highlights

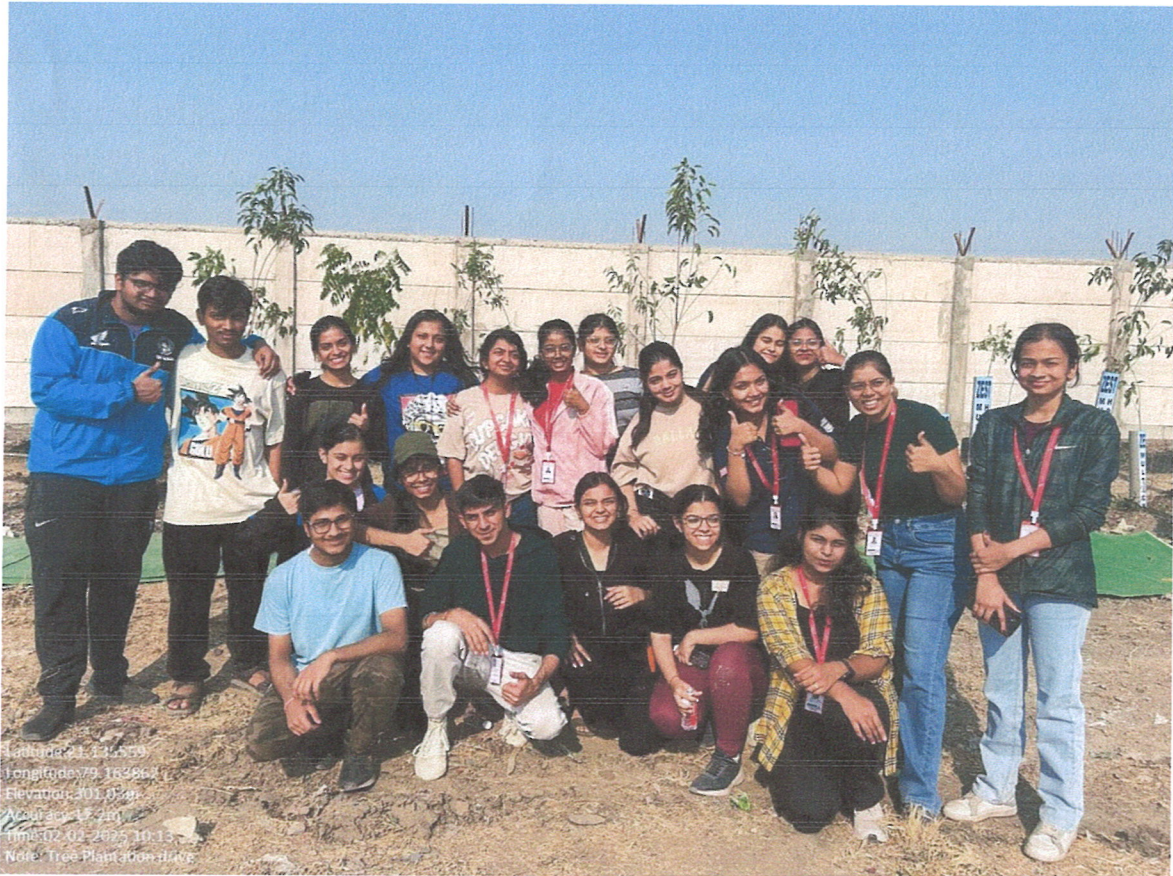

- The coordination among students and organizers was seamless, ensuring that all logistical aspects were managed effectively.
- Upon arrival at the venue, the students were guided by local individuals to the designated tree plantation site.
- The collective effort of all volunteers resulted in the successful planting of over 500 trees in a remarkably short span of time.
- The participants had the opportunity to interact and network with senior members of the Rotary organization.
- These experienced individuals shared valuable insights and personal experiences regarding social service and community development.
- The hard work put in by each individual contributed to a meaningful cause, reinforcing the importance of environmental conservation and collective social responsibility. The participants took pride in having made a tangible contribution to the community.
- After the completion of the activity, all participants gathered to enjoy a well-deserved meal.
- The event was attended by 39 students from SLS, Nagpur.

Conclusion

The tree plantation drive was conducted very successfully. The saplings included neem, kadam etc. The event concluded with a spread breakfast. The delicious spread included chole kulche, sandwiches, and jalebi, which everyone thoroughly enjoyed. The meal served as a moment of relaxation and celebration, allowing the participants to reflect on their efforts while bonding over shared experiences. As the group returned to the rickshaws, laughter filled the air as everyone recalled the amusing struggle with ants that had persistently attacked them during the plantation. The shared experience strengthened the camaraderie among the participants, marking the end of a truly memorable day.
